Subject: Briefing by the Independent Scientific Advisory Board on the Council flow-survival symposium

The Council convened a symposium on November 9 and 10th to look at current scientific information related to alternative summer reservoir operations in the Columbia River. Members of the Independent Scientific Advisory Board (ISAB) participated in the symposium and are completing a report on results of the symposium. Their report should be available by Monday, December 13.

At next week's Council meeting, representatives of the ISAB will be available to brief the Council on their report.
